[REDACTED] I got a call today from a woman in [REDACTED] who as a law student at the time Sherrie was teaching. He name is [REDACTED] graduated in [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] She'd read about the suit being filed at taxprof.typepad.com. She related her own experiences of race discrimination. At her orientation she and others were told of strides, etc. that had been made regarding African-Americans at the school and how many years back white students would shuffle their feet on the floor when black students rose to speak in class. She said shortly after this, she had this happen in class. It was a group of white male students. They said racist things to her in class and posted pictures of her in Professor Joe Little's class that were disparaging - though not overtly racist. She complained to Jerry. Ultimately the whites apologized. She was responsible for having [REDACTED] speak on campus about race issue. [REDACTED]
